Marine Biologist

Marine biology is the study of marine organisms, their behaviors and interactions with the environment.

Marine biologists study biological oceanography and the associated fields of chemical, physical, and geological oceanography to understand marine organisms.

Marine biology is a very broad area, so most researchers select a particular area of interest and specialise in it.

Most Marine Biologists will have studied Marine Biology at degree level but this is a very competitive area so having relevant work experience, either paid or voluntary, will also be required.
