Next week the school will mark the European Day of Languages with a week long series of events and activities. To kick this off this week's Careers Insight is focused on the importance of language in building a successful career.

APPRENTICESHIP

SCHEME OF THE WEEK

The Government's intelligence, security and cyber agency's mission is to help keep the country safe. Their Apprenticeship programmes covers a wide variety of roles and for any of them the ability to speak another language well is a real advantage.

Whether you are interested in becoming a Doctor, a Lawyer, a Sports Professional, a Pilot, work in Logistics, or become an International Business Leader languages can help you build a successful career.

There are numerous companies right here in Shropshire who trade internationally or are part of international conglomerates. From Muller to Cap Gemini they offer careers in everything from manufacturing to technology and being able to speak another language will help your application stand out to all of them.

Diplomatic Service Officer

Job of the Week

Diplomatic Service Officers help to promote and protect British interests, businesses and citizens overseas. Depending on your entry route, you might work as; a consular officer helping UK nationals abroad, in immigration work, or a more specialised role e.g. Commercial Officer, Trade and Investment Officer or Political Officer. The ability to speak at least one other language will be key to this role as will be an understanding of different cultures and the ability to cultivate relationships with a diverse group of people

Find your place in space

When we think of careers in space we automatically think about Maths & Physics but missions and projects are increasingly global. The ability to speak a language will make you a much stronger candidate and help you stand out in this competitive sector.
