The Bitesize Careers Podcast: How can I set achievable goals?

Having goals for your future career can be a helpful way to stay on track but setting and sticking to them is often easier said than done!

University open days

University open day season is approaching. Details of all Open Days can be found on the UCAS website – please note pupils will need to request permission to attend an Open Day if it falls on a school day.

ON Spotlight

Ben Gernon is an award winning conductor and broadcaster who works with some of the world's most prestigious orchestras. Performing at iconic venues such as the Hollywood Bowl, The Proms and Glyndebourne, he was the youngest conductor to be appointed by the BBC. He is co-presenter of the BBC Sounds podcast Monsters of Music with Tom Allen and has written and presented a wide range of documentaries and features for BBC Radio 3.

Political Risk Analyst

Working as a political risk analyst, you'll examine issues such as economic conditions, crime levels, threat of conflict, government stability and governance, trade and regulations, or humanitarian and human rights issues. You may work in or with a range of private sector companies or on behalf of governments. A degree in a social science or humanities subject is the most common entry route into the role of political risk analyst.
